

Through the World Health Organization (WHO) we are told that "Tobacco kills over 7 million people each year, despite the steady reduction in tobacco use globally, as shown in WHO's new Global Report on Trends in Prevalence of Tobacco Smoking 2000-2025. From that report it is revealed that worldwide, as much as 27% smoked tobacco in 2000, when compared to 20% in 2016."

(For more information please click on the link below)

<http://www.who.int/news-room/detail/31-05-2018-world-no-tobacco-day-tobacco-and-heart-disease>

Tobacco kills over 7 million people each year, despite the steady reduction in tobacco use globally, as shown in WHO's new Global Report on Trends in Prevalence of Tobacco Smoking 2000-2025. The report shows that worldwide, 27% smoked tobacco in 2000, compared to 20% in 2016.